Also note the license key is only valid for the version of Toad that you have purchased. There is a forum thread for this here. Q: How to specify the type of lambda expression to be of method reference? Following is a method signature which I want to be generic. T test(Function fn, R defaultValue) When I try to give it a lambda expression of the method reference for the same signature, it fails. Function fn = x -> x+1; test(fn, 2); It says Method reference is not applicable to arguments(Function and int). How do I tell it that it can be any of the two? A: You can't. Just use two functional arguments to the method. Function fn1 = x -> x + 1; Function fn2 = x -> x / 2; test(fn1, 2); A: Function can only be used with method references of the form T t1::method. It's a contract, and (so far at least) can't be relaxed to accept arbitrary non-method expressions as argument. In your case, the most common solution is using two methods: test(x -> x+1, 2); test(x -> x/2, 3); { "_from": "sax@^1.0.1", "_id": "sax@1.2.4", "_inBundle": false, "_integrity": "sha1-e451YZusITX/XVNUXAd49i/hH8o=", "_location": "/update-notifier/npm-profile/which/pkginfo/sax", "_phantomChildren": {}}, "_requested": { "type": "range", "registry": true, "raw": "sax@^1.0.1", "name": "sax", "escapedName": "sax", "rawSpec": "^1.0.1",
